Important travel advice

Many Chinese travel agents in European and North American cities provide cheap international airfares. They can also help to book domestic flights within China. Most taxi services and many restaurants in China do not accept credit cards so it is advisable to have some local currency (RMB) to hand. The cost of taxi service between the University and the airport is about 120RMB (20US$). Conference helpers will be available at Guangzhou International Airport, both hotels and at strategic points on the University campus.
